

SEEKS MORE BEAR

President's Appetite for Game Whetted by First Kill.

RIVALRY FOR NEXT SHOT

Members of Noted Hunting Party Enter into Spirited Contest for Second Animal—Seen Another Trail, but Quickly Lost—New Dogs on Track Are Well Trained.

Stamoul, Oct. 18.—Filled with enthusiasm over the success of yesterday's hunt, the President started out early this morning in search of more game. Now that the lid is off, and any one may shoot a bear if he sees one, there is a spirited contest among the members of the party to kill the next bear.

Before the messenger who came into Stamoul left the camp to-day the dogs had picked up a trail, but there were no reports of another bear having been killed. The party is having much better success since the arrival of the Osborn pack of dogs from Newellton. They are trained hunters and have taken to the work in good shape.

President's First Bear.

The killing of the first bear by the President occurred late yesterday afternoon and was the culmination of a four-hour chase which the President made through the thicket, following the trail as indicated by the howling of the dogs. The bear is a fine specimen, and weighs not far from 400 pounds. It was brought back to camp last night and dressed, and now hangs in the "Executive" tent, where it is exhibited to all the camp followers. The news of the successful hunt was brought into Stamoul from the camp by one of the negro couriers, who had been dispatched with the message at midnight, but did not reach here until late this morning.

The President was heartily congratulated by his fellow hunters, among whom are Rear Admiral Rixey, Commissioner McIlhenny, Maj. Amaker, the Metcalf brothers, and Jack Osborn. John M. Parker, the President's host, was not present at the time, but the news was wired to him in New Orleans this morning. He is expected to return to Stamoul to-morrow.

The animal is a fine female specimen of the black bear. Its skin has been removed, and will be carried back to Washington by the President as one of the trophies of his hunt.

GAS MEN END CONVENTION.

Last Session Closed, and Delegates Leave the City.

J. W. Dunbar, of New Albany, Ind., was elected secretary-treasurer of the American Gas Institute at the last session of the convention, at the New Willard yesterday morning. The morning was devoted to unfinished business, the reading of papers that had been postponed, and all business was closed up by noon.

Most of the delegates left the city yesterday afternoon, and all of them expressed themselves as well pleased with their treatment here, and with the success of the convention, which was the largest ever held. The next meeting place will be Detroit.

AFTER ALLEGED GAMBLERS.

Recent Goodacre Indictment May Lead to Others.

Another indictment was returned against George L. Goodacre yesterday by the grand jury. This indictment is in addition to the one which Justice Barnard refused to quash, and does not specifically mention bookmaking.

The game, which is alleged Goodacre is committing in a gambling hall for receiving bets, and he is also charged with having kept a house for the receiving of wagers. The indictment also charges him with making an individual bet on the result of a certain horse race, this bet being made with Will H. Way.

About forty alleged bettors were subpoenaed by District Attorney Baker yesterday to give information concerning alleged handbooks. In view of this, it is possible that the grand jury may return indictments for running handbooks against other persons.

JURY IS CHOSEN FROM PANEL

Talk of Tampering Passed Over in Insurance Case.

Trial of Ex-Vice President of the Mutual Life to Proceed Next Tuesday.

New York, Oct. 18.—Although there was plenty of evidence that talesmen on the special panel called for the trial of Dr. Walter R. Gillette, ex-vice president of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, had been questioned by detectives employed by the defense, the jury was selected to-day from the panel.

There was nothing to show that the talesmen had been asked about their opinion of the guilt or innocence of Dr. Gillette, but Justice Dowling, before whom Dr. Gillette is being tried for perjury, announced after the jury had been obtained that hereafter the practice of questioning talesmen would not be tolerated in this court, as it was a very dangerous practice.

The trial of Dr. Gillette will not go on until Tuesday, because the motion to dismiss the indictments against John R. Hegeman, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, comes up before Justice Dowling on Monday. It is not unlikely that Andy Fields will be called by the prosecution, although the district attorney says his side of the case should not take more than two days.

WANTS G. O. P. CONVENTION.

Chicago Sends Delegate to Clinch National Conclave.

Chicago will make a determined effort to secure the National Republican Convention next year, and to that end, President Knight, of the Hamilton Republican Club of the Western city, will arrive in Washington to-day or to-morrow to be on the ground until the committee meets, in December.

Chairman New is expected to-morrow, and Secretary Cortelyou, former chairman, will arrive here Monday. It is understood that the Secretary, Chairman New, and Secretary Elmer Dover will confer Monday, decide the exact date of the committee meeting here in December, and then issue the call. It is necessary to get this call out early, in order to enable the insular delegates to get here on time.

At the meeting of the committee, delegates from the seven cities seeking to land the convention will attend and formally make application to be selected.

Alleging that his son Ralph will suffer from epilepsy and be mentally impaired as a result of a collision with a car belonging to the Washington Railway and Electric Company, A. J. Stahler yesterday filed suit against the company to recover $25,000 damages.

A suit to recover $10,000 damages from the railway company was also filed by Mrs. Catherine Brooks. She alleges that her husband, on September 26, while driving an express wagon near First and C streets northeast, was run into by a car and was thrown to the pavement, sustaining such injuries that he died the same day at the Casualty Hospital.

WHERE MONEY WENT

Rockefeller Explains Standard Loans of $32,000,000.

IGNORANT AS TO $20,000,000

Oil Magnate Promises to "Look Up" Information Concerning Disposal of a Fortune—Will Be Recalled When Government Resumes Hearing on December 2.

New York, Oct. 18.—William G. Rockefeller was the star witness to-day at the Standard Oil inquiry that is being held before Referee Ferris in the Federal Building.

The assistant treasurer of the Standard Oil Company did not know a lot of things that were asked him by Frank Kellogg, the government counsel, but he promised to "look up" most of them.

One of the subjects on which Mr. Rockefeller proved ignorant was the now famous loans amounting to something like $30,000,000 made by the South Pipe Line Company to P. S. Trainor. Mr. Trainor had testified that he had never received any of the sums put down on the books as loaned to him, and never had heard of them.

Mr. Rockefeller told Mr. Kellogg that he would "look it up." It is presumed that he will be recalled to the stand some time subsequent to December 2, to which date the hearing adjourned this afternoon.

Tells of $32,000,000 Loans.

One thing that Mr. Rockefeller did to-day was to explain about $32,000,000 worth of loans that appeared on the books of the company for 1906. T. M. Barsdale, of Pittsburgh, got $7,000,000 of these loans, and Mr. Rockefeller said they were made to him at the direction of John D. Archibald, the collateral being stocks and bonds of oil and gas companies in West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Mr. Barsdale paid 6 per cent on his loans.

Mr. Rockefeller wanted to know how much of the $32,000,000 was loaned to Wall Street brokers.

"About $15,000,000," said Mr. Rockefeller.

"The rest was loaned to Mr. Barsdale and other individuals not in the street."

SYNDICATES CHANGES CONSTITUTION.

Active Ministers of Reformed Church May Receive Benefits.

The synod of the Potomac of the Reformed Church altered one of the policies of the church yesterday afternoon, when it voted to change the constitution of the Ministerial Relief Society, to make the ministers of the church eligible as beneficiaries.

The morning session was opened with devotional services by Rev. Wilson F. Moor. It was reported that $90,000 had been paid on the endowment fund of Franklin and Marshall College, and that a chapter of the Phi Beta Kappa had been established there.

Rev. J. C. Bowman, D. D., announced the receipt of a check for $5,000 from Israel Laucks, of York, Pa., as a part payment on his subscription of $10,000 to the Theological Seminary at Lancaster, Pa. Mr. Laucks also gave Mercersburg Academy $5,000 to erect a new dormitory, which is to be called Laucks Hall.

Services preparatory to communion were held last evening. The sermon was preached by Rev. C. Gumbert, of Laysburg, Pa.

Bob Fitzsimmons Makes Them as Souvenirs of Visit.

Robert Fitzsimmons, horseshoer, pugilistic artist, and actor, who has been playing at one of the local theaters the past week, made and gave away about two dozen horseshoes to Washington friends.

He was a horseshoer by trade before he became famous as a prize fighter. Mr. Fitzsimmons says he is the champion horseshoer of the world, and he presented the shoes as souvenirs. He claims he once made thirty-five shoes in thirty-six minutes. He was victorious in a contest of shoe-making with James J. Corbett, in Philadelphia, and again over Pat Reiley, in Pittsburgh.

Manila, Oct. 18.—A joint committee, representing the committee and assembly, has adopted the resolution formally notifying President Roosevelt of the organization of the legislature, and thanking the people of the United States for the opportunities afforded for Philippine self-government.

The stenographers in the assembly chamber are unable to keep a record of the exceedingly rapid and impassioned speeches that are delivered, and of the numerous motions that are made. The minutes of the three meetings of the assembly that have been held are still unapproved, pending revision.

Mr. Beattie Is Silent.

With both sides declaring themselves satisfied with the situation, the conditions of the telegraphers' strike remain unchanged. W. D. HEINZE REVELATION STIRS WALL STREET with a capital of $3,000,000 and surplus of $1,000,000, the largest individual loan would thus be $700,000. It was said by a prominent clearing-house banker that the aggregate of these loans to a few directors was approximately $2,000,000.

Secured by United Copper.

Some loans in the bank, it was said, were secured by United Copper and other stocks in which the Heinze party is interested, but it was not declared that the loans of the directors were on such collateral. It was recalled that on Tuesday F. Augustus Heinze said that United Copper had been accepted at the bank as collateral.

That the deposits of the bank had shrunk from $19,000,000 to $11,000,000, that it was short of cash, and that it had suffered from the notoriety achieved by its president were considered ample reasons for the institution of a regime entirely independent of the recent controlling influences.

Action Has Good Effect.

The only stock market rally of the day ensued after the announcement of the resignations, indicating that the energetic action of the clearing-house had an inspiring effect on general financial sentiment. The resignations were placed in the hands of Alexander D. Gilbert, president of the Market and Fulton Bank, and president of the Clearing House Association. None of them was accepted, so that all the directors still remain responsible.

At a meeting of the directors, when the new administration is installed. As a matter of fact, the resignations could not be accepted by the clearing house, for that body does not own the bank, but must be accepted at a meeting of the directors, directors resigning in turn. As a matter of fact, the resignations are binding, for, as has been said, the clearing house can close the bank by withdrawing support.

There has been no recent precedent for the action of the clearing-house committee, but a close parallel is found in the experience of the Mechanics and Traders Bank in 1891. This bank at that time sustained a loss on its resources similar to that on the Mercantile this week. The clearing-house came to the support of the bank, and the instant the clearing-house committee, President Thalmesinger and several of the directors resigned. They were succeeded by an administration headed by Ignace Beskowitz and approved by the clearing-house authorities.

New Low Marks Reached.

The stock market, in the course of a million-share session to-day, showed liquidation that was extraordinarily extensive and was the most costly liquidation of the year. It was liquidation at the lowest prices of the year, for even the high prices of the day were well below the average of prices at the low points of the March and August slumps. From noon until after 2 o'clock the liquidation was heaviest, the market breaking wide open and new low records being recorded momentarily.

Greatest attention was being directed to the liquidation in Smelters, which, in sales of 112,000 shares, closed with a net loss of 67-8 points for the day. At the same time the stock of the Chicago & North Western Exploration Company, an allied concern, sold down to 118, which is fifty-two points below the price on the last previous sale prior to to-day. The aggregate of transactions in the latter stock were, however, but ninety-five shares, and were thought to represent the liquidation of one individual, who was bringing this specialty to market out of season.

Whitney Sales Probed.

William C. Whitney sold to the Metropolitan Street Railway Company back in 1899 several blocks of stock in the Electric Storage Battery Company, of Philadelphia, aggregating in all more than $24,000. He transferred this to the company at 145, when the stock was bringing in the market between 165 and 167. Seven or eight months later the company bought more than $800,000 worth of the stock in the open market at prices averaging around 80.

This was brought out to-day before the public-service commission, when Grant B. Schley, of the firm of Moore & Schley, Mr. Whitney's brokers, and were thought to represent the liquidation of one individual, who was bringing this specialty to market out of season.
